

Struggling with money because of coronavirus?

Get help straight away

Speak to your lender.

You can find your lender's contact details on the letters they send you or on their website.

If you call your lender you may have to wait longer than usual to speak to someone. Don't be put off. Many others are struggling with money and your lender may be getting lots of calls. Stay on the line or contact them through their website or by email.

Payment holidays and tailored support.

Support is available if you're experiencing financial difficulties because of coronavirus. This could mean taking a payment holiday or other tailored support.

You have until 31 March 2021 to apply for a payment holiday for: mortgages, personal loans, credit cards, store cards and catalogue credit, motor finance, including hire-purchase and leasing agreements, rent-to-own, buy now pay later and pawnbroking agreement, high-cost short-term credit.

This is time agreed with your lender when you make no or reduced payments. You can request a payment holiday of up to 6 months in total, but lenders can only agree a payment holiday of up to 3 months at a time. For high-cost short-term credit, you can apply for a 1 month payment holiday.

If your lender does not grant a payment holiday, eg if you've already had a payment holiday of 6 months in total, they should provide tailored support. This is support appropriate to your individual circumstances.

If you've taken a payment holiday your lender will be in touch before it ends to see if you need more help. If you can afford to restart repayments you should, as it will cost less in the long term.

Overdrafts

Your lender may be able to reduce or waive interest. Or help you reduce your overdraft by moving debt to an alternative credit product, or agree gradual reductions in your overdraft limit and balance.

Insurance

It is important to have insurance that meets your needs. Your provider can check if your cover is right for you and if your payments can be reduced.

Your credit file

Ask your lender how any help you get will appear on your credit file. Even if the support may affect your file, don't let this put you off accepting help if you need it.
